AIPAD Photography Show New York, at the Park Avenue Armory in New York City (aipad.com) March 17–20. This year's summit show of the Association of International Photography Art Dealers will feature more than 70 galleries of high-end photographs, from 19th-century through contemporary. Attractions include Andy Warhol's early black-and-white street studies presented by Deborah Bell Photographs, new work from Abelardo Morell at the Bonni Benrubi Gallery booth, and Peter Fetterman Gallery's array of images by photographers including Annie Leibovitz, Lillian Bassman, Sebastião Salgado and Henri Cartier-Bresson. "Photography has been less affected by the recession than other parts of the art world," says AIPAD president Stephen Bulger. "It remains a growing market."
